The Oosterweel Connexion gives water back to nature

Oosterweel is about so much more than closing the Ring: we are creating a new city : a greener city with parks and water within walking distance for sports and games, a healthier city wich brings the long-awaited peace and space, a more accessible city with safe and efficient roads.

In order to build the Scheldt tunnel, a considerable amount of water must be pumped up. Instead of wasting precious water, we recover the pumped groundwater and return it to nature after thorough purification.

The Great Connection brings the Oosterweel connection together with the Ring Parks and the Scheldt Bridge into a new future, in collaboration with the City of Antwerp and will be further developed and built in the coming years.

We connect existing and new neighbourhoods on both sides of the Ring, with more green, and water, less noise and cleaner air.
